Delabie looks to tap into medical sector

French firm will showcase thermostatic mixer at Project Qatar

MIXING IT UP

Delabie will showcase its Securitherm thermostatic mixer at Project Qatar.

In conjunction with exclusive local distributor, Al Uthman Mechanical Trading & Contracting Company, Delabie has been supplying the Qatari market since 2008. The French firm will introduce the mixer as part of efforts to build on recent success within the Qatari healthcare sector.

"Delabie Healthcare's range of sanitary faucets and bathroom accessories has been approved for installation at the Rumailah Hospital's Communicable Disease Unit (CDU) by Hamad Medical Corporation (HMC)," explained Darryl Menezes, product manager at Delabie.

Delabie is promoting its range of healthcare solutions at the show.

"This specialised hospital consists of a ground floor that includes a main entrance and outpatient clinics, and three other storeys that feature 65 outpatient and isolation rooms," he added.

Delabie's Securitherm thermostatic mixer is a single-lever control mixer with a removable spout. The wall-mounted device boasts a smooth interior, providing healthcare facilities with the means to completely control bacterial growth.

Additional filters can be integrated via brass or BIOFIL spouts.

Fusion flooring for Qatar

NATURE'S STEEL

Floorbamboo will showcase its range of east-meets-west flooring at the 11th iteration of Project Qatar.

The Italian firm produces a broad array of bamboo-based products, including indoor and outdoor flooring, panelling, and wall coverings. Floorbamboo is confident that its offerings will receive a positive reception at the Doha trade show.

"Floorbamboo is an Italian company that combines Eastern philosophy with Italian design," said Ediola Rrapaj, customer service and sales support representative.

"This project is based on the eco-sustainable choice that we have made to use an ancient plant that has been described as 'nature's steel'.

The aim of Floorbamboo has been to use research and technology to develop all the qualities of this ancient plant to produce prestigious, natural, and durable flooring with good looks and eco-friendly appeal," she added.

In order to guarantee the quality of its products, Floorbamboo works exclusively with five-to-six-year old stems sourced from river-adjacent basins. Selected canes are cut into strips, steamed, and dried to aid rigidity and to prevent mould and parasites.

Once this process is complete, the bamboo strips are pressed and can be worked in three different ways, depending on the product desired.

Floorbamboo customers include commercial enterprises – such as hotels, bars, and restaurants – as well as private residences.
